Howard University Announces Search for Chair of the Department of Obstetrics and Gynecology (OB/GYN)

Howard University invites applications and nominations for the position of Chair of the Department of Obstetrics and Gynecology (OB/GYN). Howard finds itself at an exciting and transformative moment in its history marked by its recent appointment of Dr. Wayne A. I. Frederick, M.D. as its 17th President in 2014.

Howard University seeks an entrepreneurial Chair with high academic standards; dedication to strong OB/GYN education; a record of promoting outstanding research; and a demonstrated commitment to diversity and inclusion. The next Chair will possess superior communication skills, political adeptness, entrepreneurial energy, and an ability to represent the Department externally to local, national, and international constituencies.

The Chair is responsible for implementing organizational and departmental initiatives to meet outstanding access, service and quality standards. The successful candidate will be responsible for creating and sustaining an environment that enhances growth and promotes accountability and teamwork. In addition, the Chair will work to assure clinical effectiveness and efficiency in the delivery of women's health across the region.

The successful candidate will be responsible for managing all aspects of department programs, including medical education, resident selection and training, program accreditation, faculty recruitment and retention, clinical practice development and outreach, and development of educational and clinically relevant research programs.

The Department Chair will work closely with the Dean and faculty to strengthen and expand clinical and educational programs in concert with clinical partners, requiring leadership to guide innovation, redesign, and growth of service lines to support both the academic and clinical missions of the university and its partners. The next Chair must be committed to nurturing programs and faculty at all sites of departmental activity. The Chair will have dedicated time for administrative, educational, strategic and research initiatives. In addition, the Chair will actively partner with the OB/GYN Residency Program Director to enhance all aspects of the Department's residency program.

The Chair must be able to provide evidence of leadership accomplishments, commitment to education and clinical service, and the ability and vision to provide strategic direction for the department to achieve academic distinction while promoting a culture of clinical excellence and productivity.

Excellent leadership, management, and communication skills are necessary; the successful candidate will work with departmental and dean's office administrative faculty and staff, faculty group practice personnel, and clinical partners, including administration.

Established in 1867, Howard University is one of the nation's leading research universities dedicated to educating students from diverse backgrounds, with a particular focus on African-American students, as well as those of all other racial and ethnic groups from the United States and the world. The University received its first accreditation from the Middle States Association of Colleges and Schools in 1921 and has had its accreditation reaffirmed at every required interval thereafter. Howard's campus contains 89 buildings, covers 256 acres in Washington, DC, and includes a 108-acre research facility in Beltsville, Maryland. Today, Howard is one of only 48 U.S. private, doctoral/research-extensive universities. Its 10,500 students enjoy academic pursuits in more than 120 areas of study leading to undergraduate, graduate and professional degrees. These students come from virtually every state, the District of Columbia and nearly 70 countries.

Howard's academic programs are offered by 13 schools and colleges: the College of Arts and Sciences; the School of Business; the School of Communications; the College of Dentistry; the School of Divinity; the School of Education; the Graduate School; the College of Engineering, Architecture and Computer Sciences; the School of Law; the College of Medicine; the College of Nursing and Allied Health Sciences; the College of Pharmacy; and the School of Social Work. More than 100,000 degrees in the arts, sciences and humanities have been awarded by the institution which is ranked among the highest producers of the nation's African American professionals.
